Hebrew Alphabet Studies:

"lamed" meaning 'oxgoad,' 'learn' or 'teach'
(Strong's Exhaustive Concordance # 3925)

"L" (in English)

The word for 'heart' in Hebrew is 'lev' or 'leb'

(the word picture here is the HEART is a
 HOUSE ('bet') of LEARNING ('lamed')

'Lamed' at the beginning of a word means 'to' or 'toward.'

Lamed also is used for the number 30.

An unusual tree shaped a little like the letter 'lamed.'

The oxgoad (lamed) was used to direct the ox for the purpose of instruction. The letter lamed is the foundation of the word lamad, which means both teaching and learning. The letter itself looks like a shepherd's staff. It is the tallest of the Hebrew letters.

In the Garden of Eden, the tree of the knowledge of good & evil bore fruit that had power to cause those who ate of it to no longer live by their God-given instincts (as do the rest of creation), but to become their own 'gods' with the knowledge to choose evil or good and, hence, bear the consequences. Since animals have never eaten from that tree, they need not fear eternal damnation—as do people.

The Trees in the Garden of Eden are personified in Ezekiel 31.

Chinese Tree-Words:

The most ancient form of the Chinese written pictograph language, called 'Oracle Bone' Chinese, has the following interesting words:

The word for NO has two trees with a snake around them.

The word for COVET has two trees with a woman.

The word for RESTRAIN has a tree & a mouth.

It appears that the first written language was penned by folks familiar with the events of Genesis 2-3.

"And he (the godly man) shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his FRUIT in his season, his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."
Psalm 1:3
